Denver: The BTI Consulting Group has recognized Wheeler Trigg O'Donnell (WTO) as a 2019 national litigation “Standout” in the Class Action and Product Liability categories. BTI is unique among rankings directories because it relies solely on client interviews to inform its listings.

BTI ranks 22 firms in the U.S. as Standouts for class actions and just six firms as Standouts for product liability defense.

According to BTI's Litigation Outlook 2019, “complex work drives corporate counsel to use law firms they know and trust-and can sell to their leadership with little debate.”

The report places WTO among an elite corps of national litigation firms that “corporate counsel tell (BTI) they are currently turning to for their most pressing litigation needs.”

“We are humbled and affirmed by the recognition our clients have provided for the work we do and the value we add.” said WTO Chairman Michael O'Donnell. “The firms on BTI's list are the best in the country for class action and product liability defense. We are honored to stand with them.”
