

Won a jury verdict for Armstrong Steel against claims of false advertising and defamation brought by a competitor in a two-week trial in federal court in Colorado.

2016

WTO lawyers successfully defended Armstrong Steel in a two-week jury trial in federal court in Denver. A business competitor alleged Armstrong and its CEO were responsible for a website critical of the plaintiff and contended certain statements on the website constituted false advertising and libel. The plaintiff sought over a million dollars for corrective advertising and tens of millions in disgorgement of profits. A jury found for defendants on both counts, and the judge dismissed a claim for equitable relief.

Related Professionals

Craig R. May
Partner

Related Practices

Antitrust
Commercial Litigation

