

Pfizer Gets SJ in Zoloft Suicide Case; Doctor Not Asked About Warning, Mealey's Emerging Drugs & Devices, at 19

News

Jan 10, 2002

Saying the plaintiff's lawyer failed to ask if a Zoloft suicide warning would have changed a doctor's decision to prescribe the antidepressant, a California federal judge granted summary judgment on all claims against Pfizer Inc in a wrongful death case (Motus v. Pfizer).

Related Practices

Product Liability