Malcolm Wheeler was selected as one of 318 lawyers nationally and eight in Denver as a 2011 BTI Consulting Client Service All-Star. This annual list is compiled exclusively by corporate counsel recommendations. Inclusion on the list recognizes a lawyer's keen understanding of business issues, total commitment and dedication to client needs, and outstanding results. This honor is particularly meaningful in a time when client dollars are scarce but demands are high.

Wheeler's practice focuses on large and complex business litigation and product liability litigation, especially nationwide pattern litigation, class actions, and major appeals. He serves as national trial counsel and is the designated media representative in connection with major litigation for a number of Fortune 500 companies. He is a fellow in the American College of Trial Lawyers, annually ranked among the top ten product liability lawyers nationally by Chambers USA, and was recently named as one of the ten most admired product liability lawyers in the United States by Law360.
