Noah Gallagher's experience includes serving as a Summer Law Clerk at WTO. He also gained hands-on experience as a Legal Intern with the Office of the Inspector General at the U.S. Office of Personnel Management, an office dedicated to preventing waste, fraud, and abuse within federal benefit programs. Before law school, he held a series of positions in the Washington, D.C., office of U.S. Senator Michael Bennet, including as Legislative Correspondent and Special Assistant, supporting the Senator's appropriations, transportation, and foreign affairs priorities. As a student, Noah supported students accused of honor or conduct violations in preparing and presenting their cases. He also was a mentor for first generation law students, a Staff Writer on the school's civil rights journal, and a member of the Jewish Law Student Association. He grew up in Grand Junction, Colorado, and enjoys hiking, biking, and skiing in his free time.
