DENVER: The Minority Corporate Counsel Association selected Wheeler Trigg O'Donnell partner Habib Nasrullah as one of 16 law firm rainmakers featured in the November/December 2011 issue of Diversity & The Bar magazine. Compiled from nominations submitted by leading law firms across the country, the list is made up of attorneys who have demonstrated the ability to generate business despite the challenging economy. Habib noted that incorporating his passion for aviation into new client development and leveraging the experience he acquired as an Assistant United States Attorney have helped him attract and retain clients.

A third-generation lawyer born in India, Habib moved from Mumbai to the United States to attend college. He received his undergraduate degree in international relations magna cum laude from the University of Southern California and his law degree from Georgetown Law Center.

At WTO, Habib's national practice focuses on product liability, mass torts, and complex commercial litigation. He represents manufacturers of pharmaceuticals, automobiles, aerospace products, industrial equipment, and consumer products, as well as banking and financial institutions, in litigation in state and federal courts across the country.
